Whistleblower Policy

Whistleblowing is when you tell people about something serious that should not be happening.

Sometimes when things go wrong it might be handled as a complaint but isn't Whistleblowing.

Interaction can help you work out whether a concern is a complaint or Whistleblowing.

Interaction aims to be honest and responsible. We expect our staff and Board to behave properly.

If you find out someone is doing something wrong, you must tell Lauren Asmussen, our Whistleblower Officer or Rob Binskin, one of our Board Directors.

Please don't find it hard to talk about.

You will not get in trouble for sharing the information with Lauren or Rob. Lauren and Rob are there to help you feel safe.

Interaction wants to solve any problems. When you tell us what is wrong, we will try and solve the problems before you tell anyone else.

Interaction will not tell people that you have spoken to us about the problem, unless we really must.

If a crime has been committed, we will have to tell the police.

Please give truthful information as this helps make things right.

Someone will be chosen to look into your concern.

When we have looked into your concern, we will talk or write to you, to tell you what we have found.

You can have someone with you to help you understand.
